Do you want to further your job skills? Do you want to study at times which suit you? ET Australia Training College can help.

As an existing worker, it's possible for you to complete your training via a self-paced mode of study with the support of your employer.

ET Australia Training College provides training in business, disability, and aged care from Certificate III to IV levels.

? What qualities does a self-paced learner need?

- Good time management skills
- Self-motivation and self-discipline
- Initiative and drive for learning
- Well developed communication skills
- Willingness to seek help if required
- Confidence in own learning abilities

🔗 What are the advantages of self-paced learning?

Self-paced learning provides an opportunity to advance your career by furthering your job skills, studying at times that fit in and around your professional and personal life.

This style of learning allows you the freedom to work through your studies at times that are convenient to you. Whilst you will have a timeframe in which to complete, you can choose when to study to meet those timeframes. There's no need to find time to get to classes, or slow down and wait for other students.

If you are someone who learns at a fast pace you have the opportunity to gain competency and finish your studies quickly. However, if you are someone who learns at a slower pace you have the opportunity to absorb information without being pushed ahead when you may not be ready.

You can start and stop as time allows in your daily routines. You simply recommence where you left off, while still meeting the due dates. Learning and qualification outcomes are the same for both self-paced learners and classroom learners.

🧠 What will I need?

You will need access to a digital device with access to Microsoft Word, Outlook (or similar) and the internet. Other software applications may be required if you are undertaking a business program but these will be discussed with you prior to enrolment.

You will need a supportive employer. Self-paced learning is only available to existing workers who have the opportunity to access workplace resources required for learning / assessment.

There will be occasions when you will be required to complete an on the job assessment activity, which may require you to gain access to workplace resources. For this reason it is imperative to have the support of your employer. Our staff member will advise you as to the type of workplace resources required, this will be done prior to enrolment.

💰 How much will my training cost?

ET Australia Training College is an approved Smart and Skilled provider. Smart and Skilled is a NSW government initiative that provides subsidised training places for eligible people. For further information please refer to the Smart and Skilled website: <https://smartandskilled.nsw.gov.au/are-you-eligible>

Our aged care and disability training programs are free-free. This training is subsidised by the NSW Government. Eligibility criteria applies.

All training resources are provided free of charge for students enrolled under the Smart and Skilled Program. There is no additional outlay required apart from any applicable student fees.

If you don't want to undertake a full qualification, talk to us about completing part of a qualification only. There may even be Smart and Skilled training subsidies available for partial qualifications.

👤 What support is on offer?

We pride ourselves on providing a high level of support to our students and believe this is what sets us apart from our competitors. We recognise that some students will require more support than others to achieve their goals which is why we have a number of different support mechanisms in place;

- Your Trainer / Assessor will be available by phone or email and will make regular contact to check on training progress and to identify areas for additional learning
- Face to face Trainer / Assessor visits can be organised if required
- Trainers / Assessors will work closely with you to identify tailored strategies for targeted support
- Opportunity to join classroom sessions for additional learning if units studied align to classroom timetables
